

Is your existing operation expanding into a new space or an entire purpose-built campus?

Corporate security should consider a Transitional Risk Assessment that looks at your existing operations.

A Transitional Risk Assessment will analyze the utilization of your space in the new environment and allow you to take the pulse of your company with an eye to update and enhance security.

Unlike a standard risk assessment methodology, PRS will incorporate the three-D approach to this risk assessment task, examining Designation, Definition and Design and incorporating these important elements into our final report and recommendations.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN HOW TO...

- ✓ Assess threats, vulnerabilities and do a consequence analysis
- ✓ Impact the assessment process with practical skills and knowledge on facility/campus design
- ✓ Plan and mitigate strategies and how to communicate them to the C-Suite

Thank you for your help. This was all new to us, you were great to work with and very professional. If we ever need this type of service again you will be our first option!

DON ANSELL, CALIFORNIA AMFORGE CORP.

“PRS did the assessment and performed an in-person study of the property. They put together an action plan with recommendations to limit our risk exposure. Their recommendations were well thought out and took a reasonable approach both with respect to cost and feasibility to implement. They are knowledgeable, professional and had thorough industry experience.
